Notice regarding Judgment against Our Taiwan Subsidiary

Regarding the incident in which a former employee of our subsidiary, Tokyo Electron Taiwan Ltd., was involved in the incident regarding our customer's confidential information, as announced in our press release dated December 3, 2025, entitled "Notice regarding Indictment of Our Taiwan Subsidiary," today, a Taiwan court rendered a judgment ordering Tokyo Electron Taiwan Ltd. to pay a fine of NT$ 150 million (the sentence was suspended for three years subject to the payment of NT$ 100 million to the affected customer and NT$ 50 million to the Taiwanese government) for violating supervisory obligations under Taiwan's National Security Act and other laws.

We place the utmost importance on compliance with laws and regulations as well as the enforcement of ethical standards, and we do not tolerate any conduct that violates these principles. We take the court's finding with the utmost seriousness that Tokyo Electron Taiwan Ltd. did not sufficiently fulfill its supervisory obligations with respect to the former employee. We will further strengthen our information management systems and other relevant measures.

As previously reported, neither the investigation nor the judgment found any organizational involvement by Tokyo Electron Limited or Tokyo Electron Taiwan Ltd., nor did they find any external leakage of the relevant confidential information. We would like to reiterate these points. We have held discussions with the customer concerned and agreed on, among other things, the enhanced principles for the protection and sharing of trade secrets and confidential information. Thus, this matter has no impact on our financial results.

We remain fully committed to improving our corporate value and meeting the expectations of all our stakeholders.
